School of Physiotherapy

EMPOWER
THE FITNESS OF THE HUMAN BODY

School of Physiotherapy

With increase in demand for physiotherapists in developing countries, numerous physiotherapy graduates are deciding to leave their home countries to work in Australian and American countries. In the past few years, it has been observed that the scope of physiotherapy as a career in the less developed countries are much higher and more rewarding.

The growth in demand for physiotherapy profession has clearly cited that studying to become a physiotherapist is an excellent alternative for those who want to work in a worldwide coveted profession. As compared to other roles in the medical profession, being a physiotherapist can be relatively less stressful with flexible working hours and it won't demand you to be on call around the clock. Physiotherapists also get to see the active, positive changes they are making in a patient's life over the course of their treatment.

Students will get a clinical exposure learning through state-of-the-art equipment in Anatomy, Physiology, electrotherapy, Exercise Therapy, Cardio-Pulmonary Rehab, Neurological Rehabilitation and Orthopedic Rehabilitation.

Bachelor in Physiotherapy Courses

With people becoming more health conscious, there is an increased need for physiotherapists to create exercise programs, to assess the safety of workplaces, and to teach preventative care in the workplace and home.

One of the emerging fields of Physiotherapy is sports injury. As a sports physiotherapist you can find opportunities in any sports club, sports team or start your own clinic.

Physiotherapists have better scope internationally than India as the market for it is increasingly extended in evolved nations where it is accepted as an effective method to cure infirmities and medical issues. Even compensation packages for physiotherapists are more alluring in abroad than in India and that may be a motivation why numerous expert Physiotherapists start their profession or start working with health solution providers in these countries.

We offer English and French languages as compulsory languages to the students, preparing them for national and international exposure. As a part of extra-curricular activity, we also provide music classes to all our students at PPSU.
